The International Council of Medical Acupuncture and Related Techniques (ICMART) was established in Vienna, Austria in 1983. Since then, it has fostered international collaboration and progress in the field of acupuncture related practices and research. Currently, there are more than 80 member associations and universities working with ICMART, representing 35,000 clinicians and researchers. We empower medical professionals, researchers, and practitioners to exchange knowledge, explore up-to-date evidence, and enhance medical care for patients across the globe. Join us in shaping the future of healthcare at ICMART, where innovation meets compassion.

On September 7, 2018, SKOM signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with the International Conference on Academic Exchange (ICMART-iSAMS 2018) in Munich, Germany.

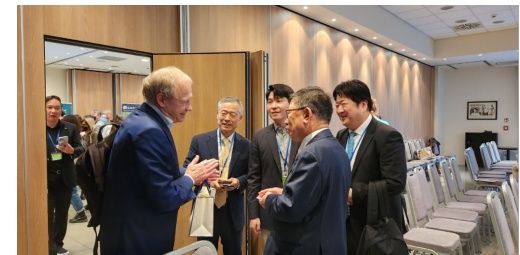

- to cooperate on policies, medical systems, academic information and education in the field of acupuncture
- to foster friendly relations between universities, hospitals and related institutions in each region
- to cooperate in exchange and support for academic competitions
